Steps for Writing an Argument Essay

Step 1  Take a stand on the topic.
- Read the topic and choose a side of the issue.
- Write your opinion as a sentence.
- This sentence will become your thesis.

Sample Topic:
Topic: Should animals be used for scientific and medical research?
Your Opinion: Animals should be used for scientific and medical research.

Step 2  Brainstorm reasons that support your opinion (the thesis).
a. Choose the best 2-3 reasons.
b. Write each of these reasons as a topic sentence by stating your opinion and one reason for your opinion. Do this step for each topic sentence.

Sample Thesis: Animals should be used for scientific and medical research.
Sample Reasons: 1. It leads to cures for deadly diseases.
2. It determines product safety of medicines for human and animal use.
3. It has saved and will save human lives.

Sample Topic Sentence: One reason why using animals for medical and scientific research is a good idea is that it leads to cures for deadly diseases.

Step 3  Write down each topic sentence.
a. Brainstorm supporting ideas for each topic sentence
b. Be sure to include specific examples, facts, and details for each supporting idea.

Step 4  Write your 4-5-paragraph essay by using the ideas from your brainstorming activity as your guide.

Organization of an Argument Essay

I. Introduction
- Introduce the topic by giving background information that briefly explains the topic so that the reader will understand the topic to be argued. (3-4 sentences)
- Then add the thesis statement that clearly and strongly states your opinion concerning the topic. Writing a direct thesis by including the reasons in your thesis is optional.

II. Body Paragraphs
- Each body paragraph gives one reason that supports the opinion stated in the thesis.
- The body paragraphs should be ordered so that the strongest is last.
- Use transition signals to introduce the opinion + reason in the topic sentence such as:

  [Your opinion]

  The first reason why we should use animals for medical and scientific research is

  [First reason to support your opinion]

  because it leads to cures for deadly diseases.
III. Conclusion

- Use a transition signal for the conclusion such as: in conclusion, to conclude, etc.
- Restate the thesis in different words than you used in your introduction.
- Summarize your main points.
- End with final comment on the topic or a suggestion.
